LEGAL RESEARCH

LEXQUAL LEGAL RESEARCH SERVICES

- Legal research is the procedure of recognizing and recovering information essential to arrive at legal decision-making. India is expected to be the chief receiver of the legal research services outsourcing development owing to the considerable income discrepancy involving Indian and U.S attorneys.
- In LexQual Solutions, we understand that finding the law is of vital importance of legal research. Most importantly, we also acknowledge that the capability to analyze and arrive at a conclusion or to originate an argument based on the researched data is also of equal significance.

LEXQUAL LEGAL RESEARCH SERVICES

- ❑ We strictly adhere to the following practices while undertaking legal research for our clients:
 - We initiate our research with secondary sources to understand the probable resolutions available for the issues in hand.
 - We support our findings with primary sources inclusive of cases, statutes and regulations which are authoritative, precedential and controlling. Primary sources includes facts and data that illustrate or interpret the statutes, law review articles, and other scholarly legal writings, cited by authoritative law professionals to convince the court to reach a favourable verdict in a case.
 - We ensure that we validate the sources before drafting the conclusive research.

LEXQUAL LEGAL RESEARCH SERVICES

- ❑ In addition, we ensure that the following guidelines are pursued during our research:
 - We ensure that our research is good law
 - We don't use reversed or overruled authority
 - We perceive precedential value
 - We ensure not to collect information from unreported cases
 - We double check whether the authority relied is overruled or not
 - We update our research in accordance with the updating of laws
 - We cross-verify whether our research is archaic
